

Margaret McNett Burruss Muddart Studios

Margaret McNett Burruss is a potter living and working in Earlysville, VA. She works in porcelain and stoneware, and enjoys incorporating themes from nature into her work.

Margaret spent her childhood in Madison County, VA, wading in the Hughes river, hiking Old Rag Mountain, and exploring the surrounding countryside. In high school, she attended Tandem Friends School in Charlottesville where she first studied ceramics, and fell in love with clay.

After college, while working as a systems designer, Margaret established her ceramics studio. She continued to create handmade pottery throughout her subsequent career in systems design and nonprofit management and has studied with local artists in both Charlottesville and Northern Virginia.

Besides rural Virginia and Charlottesville, Margaret has lived in the D.C. area, China, and Kansas. Today, her studio is located in Earlysville, where she still enjoys exploring the rural landscape, hiking the Blue Ridge, and playing with clay.
