Artist, Painter

Jane Forth has a BFA from the University of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. She and is an active member of the Woman's Caucus for Art of Greater Washington D.C. and exhibits locally, regionally and nationally.

Jane paints using both traditional and non-traditional techniques and utilizes natural materials such as beeswax and plant resin. The sense of her work is one of connection with nature where dynamic relationships of color and form evolve. There is an element of the unexpected when working in molten wax and in brushing, pouring and carving, she creates a series of revisions fused into multiple glazes. A painting is complete when the complexities of medium and vision meet in expressing the dimension and luminous character of landscape.

"My work is open to interpretation for my interest is to communicate the dynamic and delicate balance in nature and to engage dialogue."
