

Kevin Bosch

KC Bosch is a photographer, woodworker, and poet. Raised in a large military family, he has lived and worked all over the U.S. and Europe before settling in Rappahannock County, Virginia, which has become his home and inspiration for the last two decades. After having had three kids graduate from Rappahannock schools, he now spends his time making new things and fixing old ones. His poetry has appeared in Camel Saloon, Dead Mule, Plum Tree Tavern, Poetry Breakfast, and Vox Poetica. His first full-length book of poetry and photos, Stealing Days, was published with the help of a Claudia Mitchell Fund grant in 2015. For the last three years, he has administered the Rappahannock Writer's Retreat, also underwritten by the Claudia Mitchell Fund.
