I grew up in a darkroom and my camera has never been far from my side. I am a founding member of the Old Rag Photography Gallery in Rappahannock county, VA. Using my night sky photography, one of my current photographic passions, I helped my local county park become an International Dark Sky Park.

As a retired veterinarian, I enjoy teaching photography, challenging myself in new photographic techniques (including drones) and using my overlanding skills to get into the back country searching for unique images.

My images are in private collections and have won awards in local and national competitions.

I enjoy spending time in nature, waiting for the right light and scene to get the shot I have planned. After shooting, I look forward to taking the image into the modern software and bringing out the best in the image, or even taking the image and applying some creativity to make it into something special.
