

Jeanne Drevas

Jeanne Drevas (or you can say “I”) was an early member of the Middle Street Gallery showing her sculptures made of scavenged materials both made and forest made. She participated in many MSG shows and helped hang and assist in jurors making selections for shows. Aging required her to wisely stop with the 3-D making and she now writes and paints. Her first memoir (with another one in the making) centers around building her handmade house. It is called Handmaking My House And Building My Life.
